B2
--This invention relates to novel multibinding compounds (agents) that are antibacterial agents. The multibinding compounds of the invention comprise from 2-10 ligands covalently connected by a linker or linkers, wherein each of said ligands in their monovalent (i.e., unlinked) state has the ability to bind to an enzyme involved in cell wall biosynthesis and metabolism, a precursor used in the synthesis of the bacterial cell wall and/or the bacterial cell surface thereby interfering with the synthesis and/or metabolism of the cell wall. Preferably, the ligands are selected from the beta-lactam or glycopeptide class of antibacterial agents.--
